The Road Not Taken by Robert Frost

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;
Then took the other, just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that, the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh! I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.
I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I--
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

English

When the word English is heard, almost everyone thinks of grammar and boring poems. But actually English isn't just all that. Oh yes, you do study poems and famous authors, and naturally everyone's favorite, grammar. There are times when English can be boring, such as lectures on these really groovy sixteenth century authors. And there are also the times when a report comes back with with an "A" on it, and you copied it almost word for word from your best friend. Have you ever thought of the advantages of English? Employers as well as college examiners judge a person's education by the quality of the English he uses.

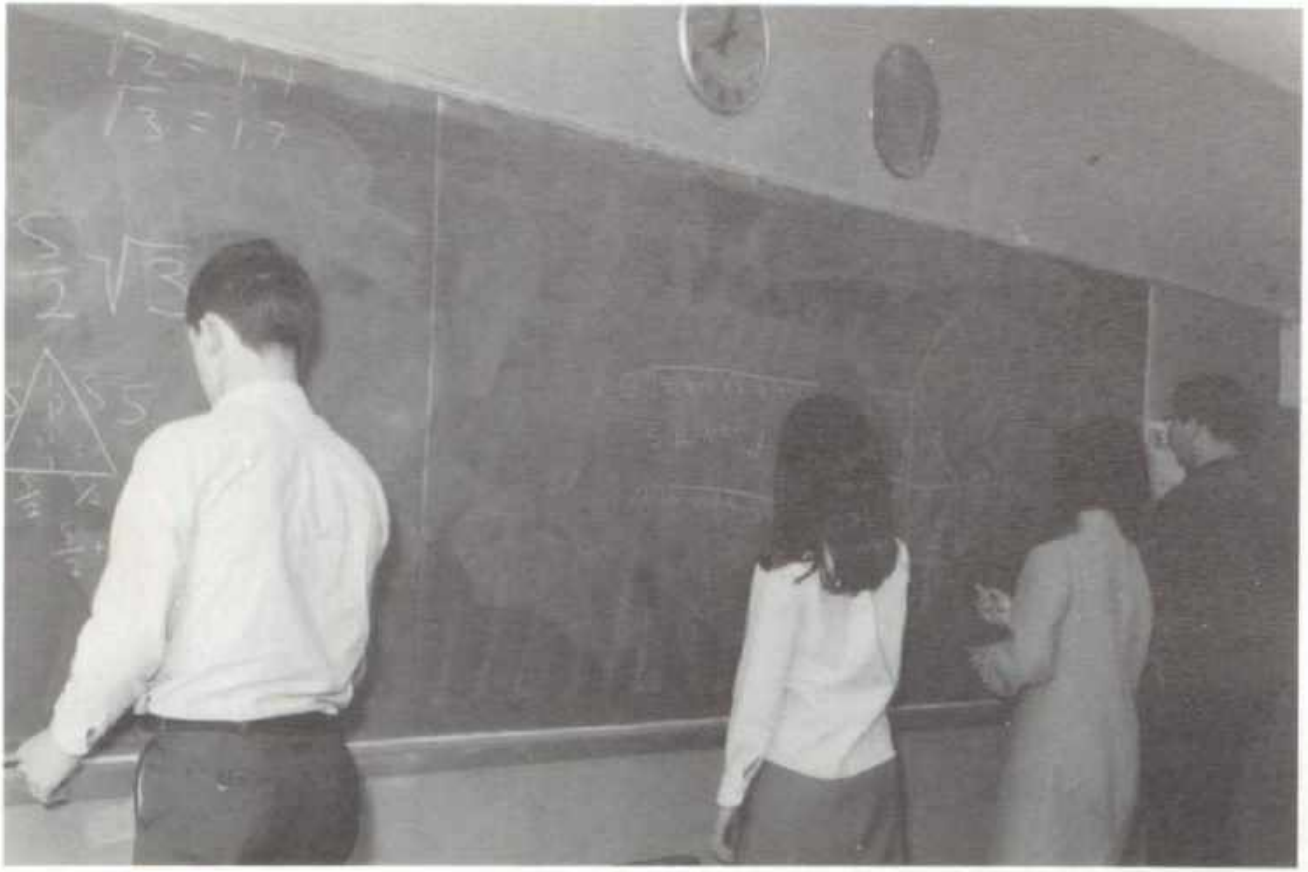

Languages

When thinking of a foreign language, the first thought that enters our minds is the conjugating of verbs and writing reports in that certain language. But actually studying a language is much more. People are easily misunderstood for saying one thing, when they actually mean another. Things that we take at face value, might have a different meaning if you understand the people of a country and their culture. A person studying a language gets a feeling of accomplishing a goal. The goal at first was to learn the language, but throughout the year more is absorbed that you actually realize. You may find that the country is as interesting as the language itself.

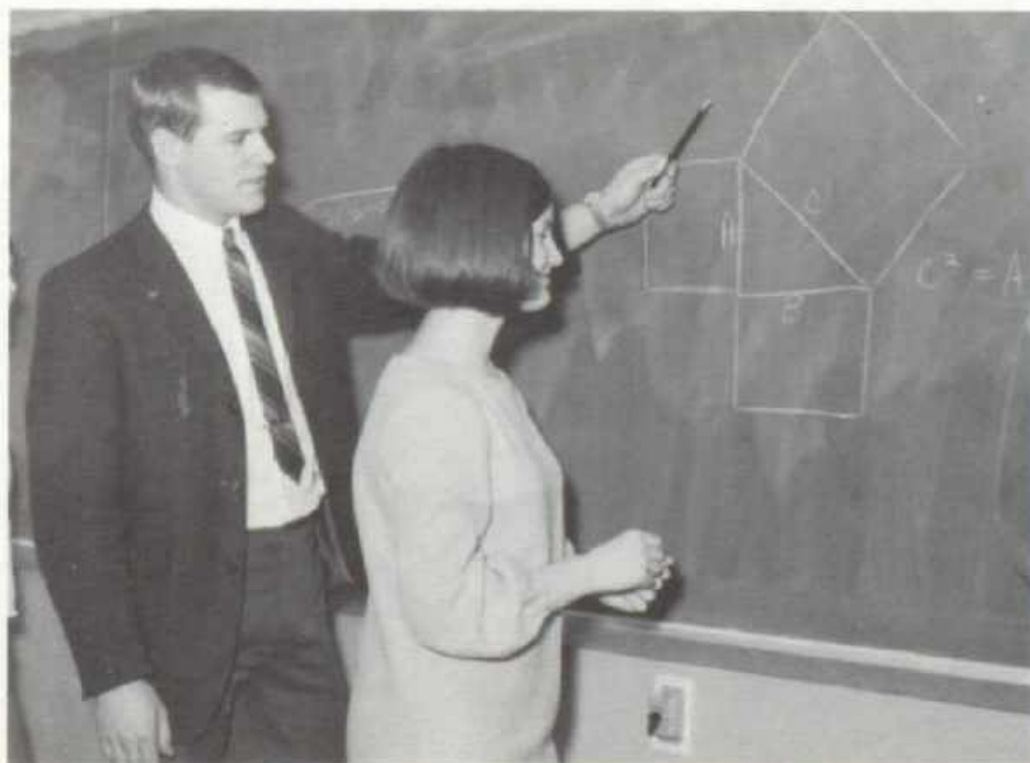

Mathematics

Math offers a world of exploration to those willing to enter its unknown regions. At the first sight of a new problem, the first impulse is always that you can't do it and that it's too hard. But usually with a little effort, you find that you can. Many students feel higher mathematics will be of little use to them later on in life. Actually it offers a discipline and organization of thought which gives you a new way of thinking. A new way of thinking is what today's scientific world wants.

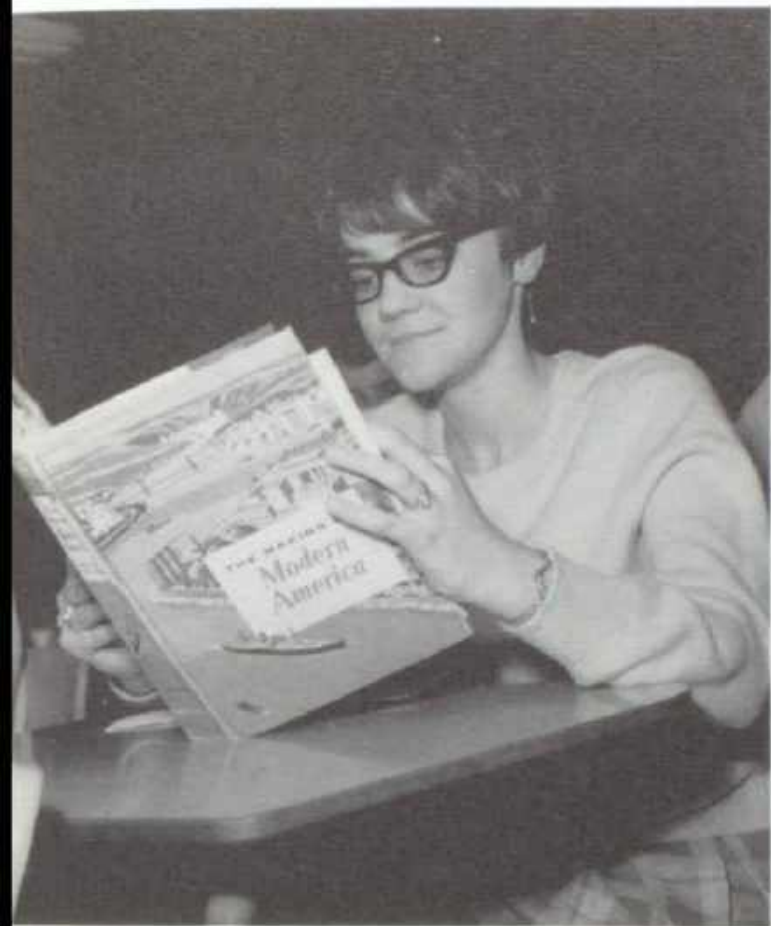

Social Studies

Studying today's world and what has made it that way is a good description of social studies in general. Of course it isn't all that easy, because there are many things to memorize which include terms, dates, places, and famous people. This can be boring in lectures though often a good discussion is started up. Sometimes these discussions turn into arguments.

By studying the past and present you not only learn of historical events, but also of the mistakes we have made. These mistakes are sometimes made over again and that itself gives us a clue to the future.

Sciences

Whether measuring 10 ml. of hydrochloric acid, or dissecting a frog, you must be exact in your work. In a science class, there is no room for a person to make mistakes. Errors can sometimes be costly. Science courses can be frustrating, because of the exactness that you must use. Intense concentration must be used when lectures are given and also when doing experiments, or projects.

That's just one side of a science course. Actually the higher the class, the more complicated the material. You study from the basics of the living world to the energies and their relationship to matter.

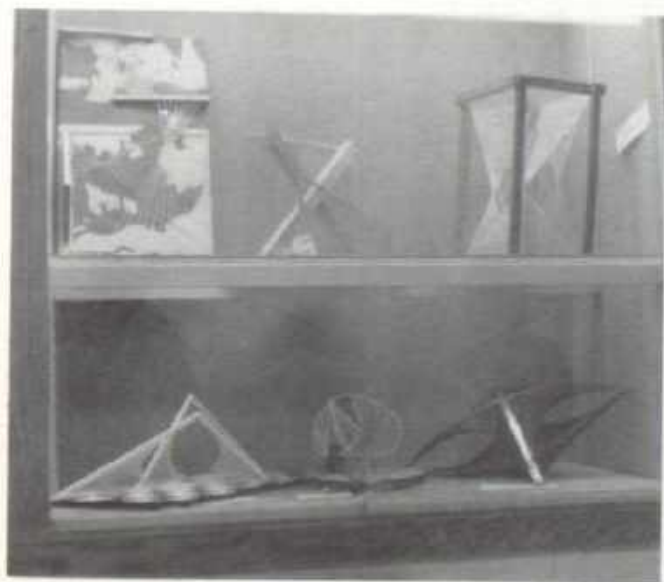

Fine Arts Department

The Fine Arts is not only the study of music and art, but learning to work together with other students. In all the fine arts, displaying the talent of the students is important. This is done by extra curricular activities, such as concerts and field trips. It is rewarding because it gives a person incentive. By displaying their talent, it also gives the students a taste of just what the professional aspects of their subject would be like. The long rehearsals and tedious work may either encourage or discourage. Either way, it is an experience we will always remember.

Industrial Arts

Industrial Arts

The Industrial Arts open a doorway to enjoyable hobbies as well as profitable vocations. Students make simple projects and then, after developing their skills, go on to more difficult ones.

In various shops, students find that projects can be as satisfying as well as profitable experience. Often times the Industrial Arts presents a challenge that many boys think they can meet and master. This era has often been said to be the Computer Age; these students are learning the ever basic crafts.

Commercial Arts

Commercial Arts

Whether it's a quick semester of Personal Typing, or a concentrated year of shorthand, the Commercial Arts are a rewarding experience. In Business English, students learn to write letters which someday might prove to be helpful in the business world. Shorthand and Second Year Typing, are designed to help today's high school student become tomorrow's young secretary. Booking not only teaches commercial economy, but also personal thriftiness. General Business teaches elementary business principles which gives students a practical application of business skills. All in all, the Commercial Arts gives today's youths an insight on tomorrow's commercial world.

Physical Education

Physical Education

Physical Education is often called a subject that is required, but is not important. However, it has been proven by the many students who have decided to take Physical Education this year, that though it is a necessary class, Physical Education is enjoyable also. Mr. Marks and Mrs. Miller have presented various sports and activities for their classes to participate in. You may not always come up as a winning team, but the participation contributes to the individual's development of a sportsmanlike attitude and teamwork. Learning to participate in a group also contributes to a person's coordination and ability with various skills.

Organizations

Student Council

The Student Council has been involved with league activities in addition to school activities. New this year at Brighton were dress code revision, election procedures, and a student pop machine. Exchange days with Milford Holly, and Northville brought better understanding and new ideas between students.

Quill and Scroll

The purpose being to promote publication of students' literature, the Quill and Scroll, under the direction of Mrs. Mosavat and Mr. Stroh, has assisted students in bettering their writing talents.

National Honor Society

Scholarship, leadership, character, and service are the basic qualities which are to be found in each member of the National Honor Society. Each member is selected by faculty vote and recommended for the organization. Being the only honorary organization at Brighton High School, it is quite an honor to be chosen.

Cheerleaders

Though not many people think of the cheerleaders as a club, in reality they are. They build school spirit with pep assemblies, and such activities as the traditional Snake Dance. Homecoming attendants and queens have come from the ranks of the cheerleaders, proving that not only are they the most enthusiastic, but among the most popular girls in the school.

Sports

Golf Team
After placing third in the Dearborn Press Invitational tournament and first in the Wayne-Oakland League, the Golf team advanced to the Class B Regional Tournament where they won first place with a score of 316 against a competition of 22 teams and qualified for the State Finals.

Football

Football is one of the nation's top sports. Brighton High School takes pride in the Bulldogs exhibition of this sport. The Bulldogs fight hard, and they play to win the game. Besides being considered a good athlete, the football player has the quality of sportsmanship and excellent co-ordination. This is true about our whole team. This is the first year that Mr. Kaestner has coached the Brighton Bulldogs, and he has done a fine job.

WRESTLING

For a newcomer to the Brighton sports field, wrestling was very well received this year. Surprisingly large numbers turned out for the new sport and added support by their cheering. Although we never achieved first place, we made our opponents realize that Brighton is a contender for next year. Competing against schools like Clarenceville and beating their best men is a real credit to coaches Zacher and Leazenby.

BASKETBALL

A fast game of basketball always rates high with the fans of the mighty Bulldogs. This year, the Bulldogs have proved to their fans that they are up and coming. When it came time for the District Tournaments in March, the Bulldogs thrilled all by beating their way to the top of the District. Coach Marks and his boys have showed us a truly exciting season.
